

Plaintiffs JULIE REEKER MOGHAL and REUBEN RENTERIA (collectively, “Plaintiffs”), on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, bring this Class Action Complaint against Defendant STUBHUB, INC. (“StubHub” or the “Defendant”), for violations of federal, state, and common law set forth herein in connection with Defendant’s misleading sales in the secondary market for World Cup 2026 Tickets in the United States during the applicable statutory period and continuing through the present day (“Class Period”).

Plaintiffs MOGHAL and RENTERIA make the following allegations based upon personal knowledge as to themselves, as well as upon information and belief and investigation of their counsel as follows:

INTRODUCTION

1. Since 1930, countries around the world put aside their differences and meet on the soccer pitch for the World Cup – the global tournament which occurs every four years in a host country or region (the “World Cup”). For the 2026 World Cup, the United States, Canada, and Mexico were chosen for the first North American World Cup tournament in over three decades. The 2026 World Cup is organized by FIFA, which operates as FWC2026 US, INC., a subsidiary of FIFA.

2. The host cities, which are serve as the locations for the stadium matches across the host country or region, play a pivotal role: providing the forum for where each of the countries play their tournament games, and, ultimately, the championship match. The World Cup has taken place in North America four times throughout its nearly century of history – and fan anticipation in the United States in particular was never higher than it was and has been leading up to and including the 2026 World Cup.

3. Unfortunately, with high anticipation comes high likelihood for taking advantage of the consumers willing to pay. The rarity of World Cup games being played in the United States means that the odds of consumers facing high prices and a difficult to navigate market were almost guaranteed. Thus, many consumers, like Plaintiffs and Class members look to StubHub as a marketplace to purchase tickets for the event on the secondary (resale) market from those who initially bought tickets from FIFA directly.

4. By way of background, FIFA possesses a lawful monopoly with a 100% market share over the distribution and sale of the 2026 North American World Cup tickets (“World Cup Tickets”) on the primary market. This is not a fact in dispute, as FIFA’s own terms and conditions limit the sale of tickets in the secondary/resale market admit as much, including through StubHub, stating in relevant part: “[t]he [FIFA] Marketplace is the [World Cup’s] only authorized peer-to-peer marketplace platform for Tickets available to the general public. Tickets for the [World Cup] are only guaranteed to be valid when Transferred or Resold through the [FIFA] Marketplace. Tickets obtained from any third-party sources are not authorized by FIFA [and] may be invalid and are purchased at your risk. RESALE TICKETS PURCHASED VIA UNAUTHORISED RESALE CHANNELS MAY NOT BE VALID OR SOLD IN BREACH OF TICKET USE RESTRICTIONS APPLICABLE TO THOSE TICKETS AND MAY BE DECLARED INVALID OR CANCELLED BY FIFA TICKETING AT ANY TIME WITHOUT NOTICE.”<sup>1</sup>

5. The motivation behind this is simple.

6. Because if FIFA controls the resale market and refuses to deal through the many secondary ticket brokers in the United States, it can extract a supracompetitive tax on the sale of each ticket in the resale market: 15% from each reseller and 15% from each purchaser for a total of 30% (the “FIFA Resale Tax”). For every World Cup fan seeking tickets on the resale market, FIFA benefits by forcing these consumers who buy secondary market World Cup Tickets to pass through its monopolistic digital box office.

7. The problem, and what this Action focuses on, is that StubHub continues to not only sell World Cup Tickets for which it is not authorized but also includes warranties called the Fan Protect Guarantee for which affirmatively promise the authenticity of these World Cup Tickets. However, this has not been the case because Plaintiffs and Class members, like so many hundreds (if not more) of World Cup fans purchased World Cup Tickets only to find out that those tickets either did not exist, were revoked without any forewarning, or had been erased due to what FIFA calls “poor digital infrastructure.” StubHub misrepresents its authority to sell World Cup Tickets, then, when Plaintiffs and Class members travel thousands of miles to attend World Cup matches, there are no tickets to be found despite having paid for them.

8. Currently with the cheapest price for World Cup Tickets exceeding $1,245 to $3,000 with some well surpassing $10,000 in many instances, consumers are already paying exorbitant prices for each World Cup Ticket – the market price for World Cup Tickets is already well above what most consumers can afford. And yet, the FIFA Resale Tax further distorts World Cup Tickets to astronomical levels – which motivates consumers, like Plaintiffs and Class members, to purchase more affordable tickets on StubHub, which is a purportedly, well-known vendor in the resale market for tickets for sporting events and concerts.

9. Further, when tens of thousands of World Cup fans missed out on the initial opportunity to buy World Cup Tickets through FIFA’s primary sale offering, they turned to the resale market with a choice: purchase from StubHub and avoid the FIFA Resale Tax or purchase from FIFA and pay prices they simply cannot afford. This, however, is purely a Hobson's Choice – as StubHub itself has stated that FIFA limits how Plaintiffs and Class members can buy and sell World Cup Tickets.<sup>2</sup> As the Associated Press reports, “FIFA has urged fans to buy resale tickets through its own marketplace, where it slaps a 30% surcharge on every resold ticket [...] but many fans bought through other resale sites, either out of habit or because those sites have lower prices or are easier to navigate.”<sup>3</sup> And so, the internet has been flooded with complaints from consumers like Plaintiffs and Class members who bought resold tickets through vendors like StubHub only to arrive to the stadium completely empty handed.

10. At this point, what is known is that Plaintiffs and Class members are losing their tickets despite having legally purchased them, despite having been told they exist, and despite the Fan Protect Guarantee. Whether the reason that this occurs is because of a mysteriously “poor infrastructure” which leads to the cancellation of the World Cup tickets does not matter. What matters is that Plaintiffs and Class members were lied to and purchased World Cup Tickets for large sums of money – only to incur tremendous financial losses due to the necessity to pay travel expenses, take off time from work, and for other ancillary costs. This is a new low for a sports ticketing industry that has been rampant with consumer protection issues time and time again to the detriment of the fans who make sports special.

11. Plaintiffs and Class members are among the hundreds (if not more) World Cup fans who did not get what they paid for on the resale market due to StubHub's violations of the federal, state, and common laws and seek injunctive and declaratory relief as well as damages due to Defendant's conduct. Additionally, Plaintiffs and Class members are entitled to their costs of suit, attorneys' fees, and all other relief that this Court deems just and proper.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

12. This Action arises under federal, state, and common laws, including under the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act (15 U.S.C. §§ 2301-2312, et seq.) ("MMWA"), with such relief to include: a declaratory judgment, equitable and injunctive relief, as well as a measure of damages (including actual damages, punitive damages and statutory damages), disgorgement of profit, costs of suit, pre- and post-judgment interest and reasonable attorneys' fees and costs, as permitted by statute.

13. With respect to state and common law violations, Plaintiffs and Class members seek relief for violations of (i) California's Unfair Competition Law (Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, et seq. ("UCL"), (ii) California's Consumer Legal Remedies Act (Cal. Civ. Code §§ 1750, et seq. (only seeking injunctive relief) ("CLRA"), (iii) California's False Advertising Law (Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code. §§ 17500, et. seq.) ("FAL"), and (iv) conversion with such relief to include: injunctive relief, a measure of damages (including restitution, actual, nominal, punitive or exemplary damages, as well as statutory damages), costs of suit, pre- and post-judgment interest and reasonable attorneys' fees, as this Court deems necessary and proper.

14. Subject Matter and Supplemental Jurisdiction. Plaintiffs bring this Action under the MMWA, such that subject matter jurisdiction is proper under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1332(d), and 1367. This Court has federal question jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 because Plaintiffs assert claims arising under federal law. Additionally, this Court has supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiffs' state and common law claims under 28 U.S.C. § 1367 because all of their claims arise from the same facts and circumstances and form part of the same case or controversy.

15. Additionally, this Court also has subject matter jurisdiction over Plaintiffs' state law and common law claims under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 (28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)) ("CAFA"). This Court has subject matter jurisdiction under CAFA because the amount in controversy exceeds the sum of $5,000,000 (exclusive of costs and interest), there are more than 100 putative members of the Class and minimal diversity exists between the litigants, as one or more of the Class members is a different citizen than Defendant. Namely, Plaintiffs are both domiciled in California whereas Defendant is headquartered in New York.

16. Personal Jurisdiction. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant because its principal place of business is located in New York. Additionally, this Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant because Defendant is registered to do business in New York and a substantial part of the events and conduct giving rise to Plaintiffs' claims occurred in New York.

17. Venue. Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. §1391(b), (c) and (d), because a substantial portion of the conduct described in this Class Action Complaint was carried out in this District. Further, Defendant maintains substantial business operations in this District.

PARTIES

PLAINTIFFS

Plaintiff Julia Reeker Moghal

18. Plaintiff Moghal is and was domiciled in Orange County, California during the Class Period.

19. During the Class Period, Plaintiff Moghal paid StubHub $1,905 for three tickets to the 2026 World Cup match between Switzerland and TBD (a team to be identified later) on June 18, 2026 which would take place in Los Angeles, California at SoFi Stadium. Plaintiff Moghal received a notice that her tickets were ready, only to find that StubHub cancelled the order. Plaintiff Moghal then frantically spent hours on the phone with StubHub only to find that the order would remain cancelled – only for StubHub to then promise that they would deliver her tickets an hour before the match, which never occurred. Plaintiff Moghal drove to SoFi Stadium, waited in line, and never received her tickets. This defies the StubHub Fan Protect Guarantee.

20. Plaintiff Moghal was promised a refund but never received her tickets nor did she receive a refund.

21. Had Plaintiff Moghal known that StubHub was either unable to deliver or not authorized to deliver her World Cup Tickets to her, she never would have purchased them. Plaintiff Moghal reasonably believed and relied on StubHub's representation that they would produce her tickets – and, even after spending $1,905 for them, never received them. Plaintiff Moghal suffered harm by way of the monies she lost due to StubHub's misrepresentations, omissions, and conversion of her funds. Plaintiff Moghal reported StubHub to the Federal Trade Commission through her attorney on June 30, 2026.

Plaintiff Reuben Renteria

22. Plaintiff Renteria is and was domiciled in Los Angeles County, California during the Class Period.

23. During the Class Period, Plaintiff Renteria paid StubHub $2,294.69 for two tickets to the 2026 World Cup match between Mexico and Korea on June 18, 2026 which would take place in Mexico – which is where he traveled for that 2026 World Cup match. Plaintiff Renteria received a notice that his tickets were ready, only to find that StubHub cancelled the order. Plaintiff Renteria, despite traveling to another country for tickets he reasonably relied would be legitimate, arrived to Mexico without tickets and was unable to attend the match. After significant complaints to StubHub, Plaintiff Renteria was finally refunded on June 25, 2026 without any explanation – but had already lost sums of money for travel costs, as well as time, due to being misled by StubHub.

24. Had Plaintiff Renteria known that StubHub was either unable to deliver or not authorized to deliver his World Cup Tickets to her, he never would have purchased them. Plaintiff Renteria reasonably believed and relied on StubHub’s representation that they would produce his tickets – and, even after spending $2,294.69 for them, never received them. Plaintiff Renteria suffered harm by way of the monies she lost due to StubHub’s misrepresentations, omissions, and conversion of her funds. Plaintiff Renteria reported StubHub to the Federal Trade Commission through his attorney on June 30, 2026.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

Background Information

26. StubHub publicly represents itself as a seller of ticket for sporting events, concerts, theatre, and festivals.<sup>4</sup> Amongst the sporting event tickets that StubHub sells, are World Cup Tickets, which StubHub continues to sell up and including the date of the filing of this Action on behalf of Plaintiffs and Class members, as can be seen below:

IMAGE 1: StubHub’s Sale of World Cup Tickets

27. Not only does StubHub continue to sell World Cup Tickets despite extremely negative press about the vanishing of the World Cup Tickets that they purportedly sold – which is what occurred to Plaintiffs and Class members – but StubHub advertises its Fan Protect Guarantee which can also be seen above in Image 1. On that page, the Fan Protect Guarantee states, “[StubHub] back[s] every order so you can buy and sell tickets with 100% confidence.”

28. However, and contrary to StubHub’s website and the Fan Protect Guarantee, it knowingly sold World Cup tickets that it either did not have or could not supply. This led to a flood of consumer complaints and articles about StubHub’s misleading sales of World Cup Tickets to fans.

29. For example, The Guardian published an article called “Here’s what to do if your StubHub World Cup resale ticket is canceled,” which stated “[a] growing number of World Cup fans who thought they had bought tickets to matches on the ticket reseller StubHub were notified just days or hours to spare that their tickets did not exist. Horror stories about stranded families, ruined once in a lifetime trips, thousands of dollars squandered, and hang-ups on StubHub’s customer service line are flooding social media and local news. It’s the latest sign of powerlessness many consumers feel in the US, say advocates who estimate thousands of World Cup fans may have been affected.”<sup>5</sup>

30. According to Brian Hess of the Sports Fans Coalition, “[t]he system is flawed at all levels, consumers should not have to fight like this.”<sup>6</sup>

31. StubHub has responded to this stating, “[t]he issues fans have experienced at this World Cup are transfer problems, not ticket problems.”<sup>7</sup> Before deflecting blame to FIFA itself and “significant performance issues that have affected ticket transfers across all resale platforms” that are ‘outside of StubHub’s control.’<sup>8</sup>

32. Even for World Cup fans who argue that they should be given replacement tickets as opposed to a refund (or, in the case of Plaintiff Moghal – nothing), the Fan Protect Guarantee resulted in many fans getting World Cup Tickets that were worse than those which they had initially purchased.<sup>9</sup> At this point, an attorney in Texas has accumulated more than 150 clients who were ripped off or misled by StubHub and are owed millions of dollars.<sup>10</sup>

33. FIFA, naturally deflected blame back onto StubHub for selling these tickets in the first place.<sup>11</sup> FIFA stated, “[w]ith reference to the reliability of the services available to fans on FIFA’s official ticket platform, FIFA rejects any suggestion that the functional issues being experienced by users of third-party platforms with respect to FIFA World Cup 2026 tickets are the result of FIFA’s ticketing infrastructure.”<sup>12</sup>

34. Put simply, these are tickets that StubHub should not have sold then attempted to deflect blame for its misrepresentations and omissions onto FIFA.

35. The reality is the FIFA made it known that World Cup Tickets should only be sold through its platform – and StubHub either knew or should have known this. As the FIFA Resale Terms state: “[t]he [FIFA] Marketplace is the [World Cup’s] only authorized peer-to-peer

36. Thus, StubHub should not have sold these tickets in the first instance – and the heartache and loss suffered by World Cup fans like Plaintiffs and Class members never would have occurred.

Harm to Plaintiffs and Class Members

37. Plaintiffs and Class members were deliberately misled by StubHub when it: (1) represented it could sell World Cup Tickets to consumers, (2) would refund tickets consistent with the Fan Protect Guarantee, and (3) omitted that it did not have the authority to sell the World Cup Tickets that it claimed it had the ability to sell.

38. Had Plaintiffs and Class members known that StubHub was either unable to deliver or not authorized to deliver her World Cup Tickets to them, they never would have purchased them. Plaintiffs and Class members reasonably believed and relied on StubHub’s representation that they would produce their tickets – and, even after spending money for them, and yet they never received them. that they had lost as a result of traveling to stadiums and dealing with StubHub to be reimbursed or given replacement tickets. On behalf of Plaintiffs and Class, the undersigned reported StubHub to the Federal Trade Commission through their attorney on June 30, 2026. See, FTC Report Number 203568132.

California Law Applies and StubHub's Arbitration Provision Does Not Apply

39. According to StubHub's Terms of Service, California law applies to all disputes that arise between StubHub and Plaintiff and Class members. Thus, California law applies to the entirety of the claims in this Action as well as those of the Plaintiffs and Class members in this Action.

40. Additionally, StubHub's Terms of Service state that arbitration does not apply if there is a dispute that remains and the complainant (here, Plaintiffs and Class members) have reported the dispute to the federal authorities – and the dispute still remains live and Plaintiffs' counsel reported the dispute to the federal authorities on June 30, 2026.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

41. This Action is properly maintainable as a class action pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23, Rules 23(a), 23(b)(1), 23(b)(2) and 23(b)(3). Plaintiffs bring this class action on behalf of themselves and all other similarly situated individuals. The nationwide class Plaintiffs seek to represent is defined as follows:

Nationwide Class. All natural persons in the United States who purchased World Cup Tickets through StubHub and did not receive their World Cup Tickets as promised during the statutory period.

42. In the alternative to the nationwide class, Plaintiffs seek to represent the following statewide sub-class pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rules 23(a) and 23(b)(3):

California State Sub-Class. All natural persons in California who purchased World Cup Tickets through StubHub and did not receive their World Cup Tickets as promised during the statutory period.

43. Excluded from the Classes are (1) Defendant and Defendant's subsidiaries, affiliates, officers and directors, and any entity in which Defendant has a controlling interest; (2) Plaintiffs' counsel; and (3) all judges assigned to hear any aspect of this litigation as well as their immediate family members.

44. Plaintiffs reserve the right to modify or amend the definition of the proposed Class before the Court determines whether certification is appropriate.

45. Numerosity. Plaintiffs do not know the exact number of Class members because such information is in the exclusive control of Defendants or others. Plaintiffs believe that, due to the nature of the trade and commerce involved, there are thousands of Class members geographically dispersed throughout the United States, such that joinder of all Class members is impracticable.

46. Typicality. Plaintiffs' claims are typical of those of other Class members because Plaintiffs, like every other Class member, were harmed by way of the unlawful privacy-violating conduct as alleged herein. Plaintiffs, like all other Class members, were injured by Defendant's uniform conduct. Plaintiffs are advancing the same claims and legal theories on behalf of themselves and all other Class members, such that there are no defenses unique to Plaintiffs. The claims of Plaintiffs and those of the other Class members arise from the same operative facts and are based on the same legal theories.

47. Commonality. There are questions of law and fact common to the Class, which predominate over any questions affecting only individual Class members. These common questions of law and fact include, without limitation:

- i. Whether Defendant violated the MMWA;
- ii. Whether Defendant's acts and practices violate the UCL, CLRA, and the FAL;
- iii. Whether Defendant's acts and practices constitute conversion;
- iv. Whether Plaintiffs and Class members are entitled to damages and/or equitable relief, including injunctive relief and restitution; and
- v. The appropriate class-wide measure of damages as well as whether Plaintiffs and Class members are entitled to such damages and other relief.

48. Adequacy of Representation. Plaintiffs will (and have) fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the Class members in that they have no disabling or disqualifying conflicts of interest that would be antagonistic to those of the other members of the Class. The damages and infringement of rights that Plaintiffs suffered are typical of other Class members, and Plaintiffs seek no relief that is antagonistic or adverse to the members of the Class.

Plaintiffs have retained counsel experienced in class action litigation, and Plaintiffs intend to prosecute this action vigorously.

49. Superiority of Class Action. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy, as the pursuit of numerous individual lawsuits would not be economically feasible for individual Class members, and certification as a class action will preserve judicial resources by allowing the Class' common issues to be adjudicated in a single forum, avoiding the need for duplicative hearings and discovery in individual actions that are based on an identical set of facts. In addition, without a class action, it is likely that many members of the Class will remain unaware of the claims they may possess.

50. The litigation of the claims brought herein is manageable. Defendant's uniform conduct, the consistent provisions of the relevant laws and the ascertainable identities of Class members demonstrate that there would be no significant manageability problems with prosecuting this lawsuit as a class action.

51. Adequate notice can be given to Class members directly using information maintained in the parties' records.

52. Predominance. The issues in this action are appropriate for certification because such claims present only particular, common issues, the resolution of which would advance the disposition of this matter and the parties' interests therein.

53. This proposed class action does not present any unique management difficulties. Defendant has acted on grounds generally applicable to the Class, thereby making final injunctive relief appropriate with respect to the Class as a whole.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

VIOLATION OF THE MAGNUSON MOSS WARRANTY ACT

15 U.S.C. §§ 2301-2312, *et seq.

ON BEHALF OF THE NATIONWIDE CLASS

54. Plaintiffs reallege and repeat each and every allegation from the preceding paragraphs as if fully realleged and set forth herein.

55. The MMWA governs written warranties for consumer products, including preventing companies, like Defendant, from providing misleading warranties and allowing a private right of action for breaches of warranty.

56. Defendant makes warranties with respect to the Fan Protect Guarantee, including with respect to World Cup Tickets, stating: “[StubHub] back[s] every order so you can buy and sell tickets with 100% confidence.” Under the MMWA, Defendant is also so obligated to give timely and complete performance of warranty obligations – which they have failed to do for Plaintiff Moghal and Class members.

57. As stated by the Federal Trade Commission, to whom Plaintiffs and Class members reported their concerns, “[o]bviously, warranties must not contain deceptive or misleading terms. You cannot offer a warranty that appears to provide coverage, but, in fact, provides none.” In this instance, the Fan Protect Guarantee is deceptive and misleading because they either are not refunding World Cup Tickets at all, merely refunding tickets in a delayed manner, or providing tickets that are not of the same value that were originally purchased.

58. The MMWA allows consumers to recover damages, as well as court costs and reasonable attorneys’ fees, which is what Plaintiff Moghal and Class members are pursuing in addition to any other damages this Court deems just and proper.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

VIOLATION OF CALIFORNIA’S UNFAIR COMPETITION LAW

ON BEHALF OF THE NATIONWIDE AND CALIFORNIA STATE SUB-CLASS

59. Plaintiffs reallege and repeat each and every allegation from the preceding paragraphs as if fully realleged and set forth herein.

60. The UCL prohibits any “unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or practice.” Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200. A business practice need satisfy only one of the three prongs to violate the UCL. Defendant’s conduct violates the unlawful and the unfairness prongs.

61. Unlawful Prong. Defendant’s conduct is “unlawful” because it violates the MMWA, the CLRA, the FAL and numerous common law claims. The UCL borrows these violations as independently sufficient predicates for “unlawful” conduct.

62. Unfairness Prong. Defendant’s conduct is “unfair” because the gravity of the harm to Plaintiffs and Class members — the sale of World Cup Tickets without being authorized to do so or unable to do so — substantially outweigh any utility to Defendant’s make money off of the sale of these tickets. Defendant’s conduct also offends public policy as reflected in California’s consumer protection laws. No consumer reasonably would have known that StubHub, a purportedly well-known vendor for the resale of tickets, did not have the ability to consummate the transactions as promised. This imbalance of power and information is precisely the type of conduct the UCL was designed to address.

63. Plaintiffs and Class members have suffered injury in fact and lost money or property as a result of Defendant’s unfair and unlawful conduct.

64. Plaintiffs and Class members are entitled to restitution and disgorgement of Defendant's ill-gotten profits, as well as injunctive relief preventing Defendant from continuing its unlawful, unfair, and fraudulent business practices. Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17204.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

VIOLATIONS OF CALIFORNIA'S CONSUMER LEGAL REMEDIES ACT
ON BEHALF OF THE NATIONWIDE AND CALIFORNIA STATE SUB-CLASS

65. Plaintiffs reallege and repeat each and every allegation from the preceding paragraphs as if fully realleged and set forth herein.

66. The CLRA prohibit deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any business, trade or commerce or in the furnishing of any service – including selling products that do not have the qualities or representations that they purport to have.

67. Defendant committed deceptive acts or practices by employing false, misleading, and deceptive representations and/or omissions about the sale of World Cup Tickets.

68. Information as to the content in each of their World Cup Tickets were in the exclusive control of Defendant. Plaintiffs could not possibly have known that the representations were not only false, but misleading.

69. Because Plaintiffs bought these World Cup Tickets, Plaintiffs have standing to pursue this claim because they each have suffered an economic injury due to lost money or property as a result of Defendant's acts or practices. When Plaintiffs purchased the World Cup Tickets, they relied on false, misleading and deceptive representations that the World Cup Tickets were being sold consistent with advertising on Defendant's website and application. Plaintiffs spent money on the transaction that they otherwise would not have spent had they known the truth about Defendant's Products.

70. Defendant's conduct was deceptive in a materially misleading way because it violates consumer's reasonable expectations.

71. Defendant knew that this information about the World Cup Tickets it was going to sell, which are specifically marketed toward sports fans and other consumers, remain material to these types of consumers. As a result of its deceptive acts and practices, Defendant sold millions of units of the World Cup Tickets to unsuspecting consumers nationwide, as well as to thousands of unsuspecting consumers nationwide, and in New York and California.

72. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's false, misleading and deceptive representations and/or omissions, Plaintiffs and Class members were injured in that they: (1) paid for the World Cup Tickets that were not what Defendant represented and (2) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because these World Cup Tickets were not actually sold as promised.

73. On behalf of themselves and Class members, Plaintiffs seek to enjoin Defendant's unlawful acts and practices by not allowing Defendant to continue to sell World Cup Tickets.

74. Additionally, on behalf of themselves and Class members, Plaintiffs also seek to recover their actual damages or statutory penalties, whichever is greater, and three times their actual damages, as well as reasonable attorneys' fees.

75. Plaintiffs will amend their Complaint to give notice regarding the applicability of damages under the CLRA after a 30-day window to cure.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION

VIOLATIONS OF CALIFORNIA'S FALSE ADVERTISING LAW

ON BEHALF OF THE NATIONWIDE AND CALIFORNIA STATE SUB-CLASS

76. Plaintiffs reallege and repeat each and every allegation from the preceding paragraphs as if fully realleged and set forth herein.

77. Defendant engaged in a systematic campaign of false and misleading advertising and marketing with regard to the ability to adequately sell World Cup Tickets through its website or platform, which was entirely untrue. Additionally, Defendant engaged in a systematic campaign of false and misleading advertising regarding the Fan Protect Guarantee.

78. When Plaintiffs purchased World Cup Tickets from Defendant, they each relied on false, misleading and deceptive representations, as well as omissions to the contrary, which led them to believe that the Products as advertised. Plaintiffs spent money in the transaction that they otherwise would not have spent had they known the truth.

79. Defendant knew that this information about the World Cup Tickets it was going to sell, which are specifically marketed toward sports fans and other consumers, remain material to these types of consumers. As a result of its deceptive acts and practices, Defendant sold millions of units of the World Cup Tickets to unsuspecting consumers nationwide, as well as to thousands of unsuspecting consumers nationwide, and in New York and California.

80. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's false, misleading and deceptive representations and/or omissions, Plaintiffs and Class members were injured in that they: (1) paid for the World Cup Tickets that were not what Defendant represented and (2) were deprived of the benefit of the bargain because these World Cup Tickets were not actually sold as promised.

81. On behalf of themselves and Class members, Plaintiffs seek to enjoin Defendant's unlawful acts and practices. On behalf of themselves and Class members, Plaintiffs also seek to recover their actual damages or applicable statutory penalties, whichever is greater, and three times their actual damages, as well as reasonable attorneys' fees.

FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION

CONVERSION

ON BEHALF OF THE NATIONWIDE AND CALIFORNIA STATE SUB-CLASS

82. Plaintiffs reallege and repeat each and every allegation from the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

83. Defendant received benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members and unjustly retained those benefits at their expense through converting the funds that were supposed to be received for the purchase of World Cup Tickets.

84. Defendant received benefits from Plaintiffs and Class members in the form of the Plaintiffs and Class members' compensation they paid for the World Cup Tickets they thought they were receiving.

85. These purchases provided the Defendant with economic, intangible, and other benefits, including money.

86. Had Plaintiffs and Class members known of Defendant's misconduct, they would not have paid for World Cup Tickets from the Defendant.

87. Defendant unjustly retained these benefits at the expense of Plaintiffs and Class members because Defendant's conduct damaged Plaintiffs and Class members, all without providing any commensurate compensation to Plaintiffs and Class members.

88. The benefits that Defendant derived from Plaintiffs and Class members rightly belong to Plaintiffs and Class members. It would be inequitable for Defendant to retain any of the profit or other benefits it derived from the unfair and unconscionable methods, acts, and trade practices alleged in this Action.

89. Defendant should be compelled to disgorge into a common fund for the benefit of Plaintiffs and Class members all unlawful or inequitable proceeds that Defendant received, and such other relief as the Court may deem just and proper.

DEMAND FOR RELIEF

90. To remedy these illegal acts, Plaintiffs request the following relief:
- a. Certify the Classes and appoint Plaintiffs as the Classes' representatives;
  - b. Declaring and adjudging that the conduct of Defendant is unlawful and violates the federal and state law;
  - c. Disgorging Defendant's profits from its scheme into a constructive trust;
  - d. Awarding to Plaintiffs the costs of their suit, including reasonable attorneys' fees;
  - e. Awarding to Plaintiffs their damages, in the amount to be determined by a jury, inclusive of statutory and/or treble damages as provided by the applicable federal and state laws;
  - f. Awarding restitution and disgorgement of Defendant's unlawfully obtained profits to Plaintiffs and Class members;
  - g. Granting permanent injunctive relief requiring Defendant to cease its sale of World Cup Tickets;
  - h. Granting to Plaintiffs and Class any such other relief to which they may be entitled and which this Court deems just and proper.

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

91. Plaintiffs demand a trial by jury on all claims so triable under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 38(b).
